Language and pronunciation In Hindi, words that are short in length mean different meanings in different parts of the sentence and some of the same meaning is sometimes used several times in consecutive sentences. This feature is called Hindi phonetically. Hindi also has a lot of phonetic elements, which are called diacritics. Hindi is usually pronounced like a regular word, but in the written form (with the h sound), sometimes it is pronounced like a hard stop-stop sound. A different pronunciation and sound is used in some Hindi dictionaries like Hindustan and Prakriti. Hindi also differs from some English words, such as French or English word names, to some extent. Most of these differ from Hindi because Hindi is used mainly for poetry and comedy (Hindus like to imitate English comedy films)..
